DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

2. Claims 1-4, 15-17, and 19-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kunitomo et al. (US 5,436,503, previously cited, hereinafter Kunitomo.)

In regard to claims 1, 15, and 17, in figs. 3-4, Kunitomo discloses a semiconductor die comprising:

a sheet-like, nonconductive structure 11 having a first surface, and a second surface for attachment to the semiconductor die; and a plurality of electrical conductive discrete pads 12 attached to the first surface, the plurality of electrically conductive discrete pads each having an electrical connection portion 12 and an electrical isolated 13 comprising a portion facing the first surface and a periphery 18, for example, see fig. 4;

an adapter 17, at both ends of the structure in fig. 9, having a first plurality of discrete electrical contacts on a first surface thereof.

In regard to claims 2-3, see fig. 3.

In regard to claim 4, see col. 6, lines 60-68.

In regard to claims 16, 19-25, see fig. 3.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 18 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kunitomo et al. as applied to claim 15 above, and further in view of Orcutt (US 4,712,129, previously cited.)

In regard to claim 18, Matsuda et al. does not expressly discuss materials having matching TCE between the die and the layer that the die attaches to. It is noted that the thermal matching is very well known in the art of semiconductor. This matching helps to prevent the cracking might happen under high temperature, see the abstract. For example, Orcutt discloses that the texture and the die have similar TCE in order to prevent the cracking between the die and the substrate.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to use the matching TCE of Orcutt's in Kunitomo et al. in order to prevent the cracking between the die and the substrate.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed 11/6/02 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicants submit that contact pads, in '503, are not "electrically isolated about the portion facing the first surface". In regard to figs. 4 and 9 of '503, the pads 12 and solder balls 9 are surrounded and isolated by non-conductive adhesive 13, 13 is the electrically isolated portion. This isolated portion faces the first surface of the sheet-like 11 and peripheral therein, 12, for example. This illustration meets the language as claimed in claim 1. It is noted that the limitation "electrically isolated about the portion facing the first surface" does not express the necessary of isolation layer to be in between the substrate and the conductive pads.
